

Allyson Dewar
 CEP 815
 5 Tweets

Senario	Diplomat Tweet	Expert Tweet
A school district wants to purchase a new online educational program. The teachers have been asked for their input.	Whatever my principal thinks is best for the school is fine with me!	Study Island-trusted by 23,000 schools in US and Canada.

The diplomat wants to please his/her superiors so she will go along with whatever her principal picks for the school. Even though the principal won't be the one actually in the classroom using the program, this person doesn't want to rock the boat. The expert presents data and logic in their efforts and found a cold hard fact to support his/her decision. Obviously this person has done their research.

Senario	Individualist Tweet	Opportunist Tweet
An elementary school requires all teachers to test their student's reading comprehension for the fall. The school decides to use the DRA reading assesment.	I'm not doing the DRA. I can tell my kid's reading level just by working with them in class.	I'm going to get my DRA's done first and let my principal know who hasn't done them yet!

The individualist is disregarding this request because they find it irrelevant. They know what is the right way to judge student's reading comprehension. The opportunist looks at their teaching peers as competitors and wants others to get in trouble on purpose.

Senario	Achiever Tweet	Diplomat Tweet
A school PTA needs to think of some fundraiser activities to generate money for the school.	School-wide rummage sale-we can all donate items for it to work!	The school does the Morley candy sale every year. Let's just stick with that.

The achiever came up with a totally different idea for a fundraiser. It is a very unique idea and as a team, the school can all donate items to make it happen. The diplomat doesn't want to change things up so they just want to keep things the same.

Senario	Achiever Tweet	Alchemist Tweet
A school is concerned with communicating with their ELL parents.	Let's have a "Parent University" every Fri after school. ELL teachers, Sp Ed, Counselor, and teachers can all help!	Even though I am a principal, I want to be a part of a potential "Parent University!"

The achiever comes up with an awesome unique idea to have a "Parent University" to help ELL parents speak conversational English. She suggests who all can take part in the idea. The alchemist, in this case a principal, wants to also be included showing how they can relate to a wide variety of people in their profession.

Senario	Opportunist Tweet	Diplomat Tweet
A school staff member shares his/her knowledge on integrating technology in the classroom at a staff meeting from his/her graduate program.	I can do just as much with technology too...	I wonder what my principal thinks about all this information?

The opportunist views her colleague sharing knowledge as a competitor and thinks they can out-do them. The diplomat wonders how her principal feels about this knew knowledge before they create their own opinions/beliefs.